Publication Ethics and Malpractice Statement

The monthly scientific and technical journal (E+E) stands for meeting the highest standards of publication ethics, whereas the publication malpractice is strictly prohibited by all possible means.

Articles submitted for publication in E+E are double blind peer reviewed, and all Reviewers' comments about the article are kept only between the parties involved in the act of publishing: the editors, the authors and the peer reviewers.

For this reason, it is necessary to agree upon standards of expected ethical behavior.

Editors

The Editor will accept and protect the submissions of any authors, regardless of gender, nationality, religious/political/sexual etc. orientation and believes. In order to achieve the highest level of objectivity and infringement of copyright in the examination process, the Editors will not disclose any information about the submitted manuscripts and their Authors to anyone other than the corresponding Author and Reviewers.

Based on the reports of the Reviewers, the Editors reserve the right to accept or reject a manuscript for publication, or to demand its modification.

Only manuscripts with two positive reviews will be published. If decision about a manuscript could not be made, additional opinion may be requested from another Reviewer.

The final selection of the papers for publication and their form of publication remains within the Editor rights.

Unpublished manuscripts must not be use in any purpose by Editors, and must be kept strictly confidential from third parties.

Authors will be informed about the decision about their manuscript as soon as possible. Accepted paper will normally be published in the current available issue.

Authors

According to the document that every Author is obliged to sign (The Copyright Agreement) the Author warrants the following that:

- The submitted article is their original work.
- Any used works and/or words not being of Authors' originally is appropriately cited or quoted.
- The manuscript has not been previously published, nor even submitted in part or totally in any language and in any media anywhere in the world.
- The Author's work does not infringe any copyright, nor violate any proprietary rights (exception from this rule are manuscripts that are part of dissertation and/or were in part or totally presented at conference).

Reviewers

Reviewer should give his/her statement clearly and objectively, avoiding personal criticism and subjectivity. All comments and suggestions from the Reviewer should be followed by supporting arguments. The Reviewer is obliged to keep all received manuscripts in strict confidentiality and must not use them for personal advantage.

Reviewer should be certified that all sources of funding is declared in the acknowledgements section of the manuscript. Any similarity to already published papers or doubt about plagiarism must be immediately shared with the Editor.

Reviewer should inform the Editor when the manuscript is out of his/her competence or he/she has no time to make proper examination.

Transfer of copyright

On acceptance for publications the Signed author as authorized agent for all Named Authors of the Article grants and assigns exclusively to the Publisher (CEEC) the worldwide copyright in the Article, which is protected by the Law.

For non-commercial purposes the Named Authors have right to:

- make copies of the Article for teaching purposes;
- include the Article (all or the part) in dissertation;
- make oral presentations or include a summary in papers or in conference proceedings;

In own format the Named Authors have right to:

- use the Article (all or part) in personal compilations in own works; included in personal web site;
- include the Article (all or part) in web site of the Institution where a Named Author worked during research;
- no sooner than 12 months after publication to include the Article (all or part) on third party web sites, but not in other publisher's web sites.
